

The classification schedule herein, is intended for use with special collections focused on hazards, both natural and human-caused. Unfortunately, the original authors are now unknown but, historically, this system originates during the 1970s, at the Natural Hazards Center, University of Colorado Boulder. This revision, made in 2022 and 2023, is intended to layer in a modicum of equity through the use of geo-polity sub-divisions. It is to future generations of librarians to make the determination of whether or not this revised edition succeeds in its implementation.

Natural Hazards Center's Hazard Classification System

A Classification System for Disaster Literature

Edited by Jacob Jett

This is a work on the classification of information objects, of interest to very few libraries, and has no value as intellectual property. Thereby, any apparent interest in this work is waived and no rights are reserved to it.

Forward

The revision of the classification system found herein began only weeks after I accepted my position here at the Association of State Floodplain Managers in the summer of 2022. When I started, this system, much like the libraries it supported, was in a moribund state of stasis. Compounding this problem, I also inherited a digital implementation that contained key errors in how some aspects of the classification identifier constructor had been implemented. In turn, this led to problems with call numbers applied to physical items that were then shelved.

I've attached the json document that realized the implementation of the classification system as an appendix to this document. I do not do this to vilify whoever implemented the system in the early 2010s. (Their name too is now lost to the mists of time.) Rather my intention is that any student of library and information science (or really, any student who will be working with data and identifiers), who should happen to examine this classification system learn from the mistakes made in that implementation. In particular, it is always important to employ place-holding, leading zeroes when employing a three-digit system. A close reading of the json document will exemplify what I mean and where the implementation causes collisions among its classes. The lesson to learn here is, rather Obi-Wan Kenobi like, we must always "slow down, [and] think" as we work. Even if this means that some work remains undone at the end of the day. Work with identifiers and data should be cautious, for it needs to be accurate.

It is my fervent hope then, that the modifications I've made to this classification system were cautious, accurate, and ultimately helpful. Beyond, altering the documentation such that future collisions among the systems classes should not occur (assuming a faithful digital implementation is made), the primary change in this, the notional 2nd edition of the Natural Hazards Center's Classification System, is the addition of a deeply layered set of geo-political subdivisions. As noted in the abstract on the title page, these geo-polity subdivisions are intended to provide the opportunity to create some equity. Unfortunately, geo-polities are, by their nature, transient entities, which is to say, further revisions (and thus editions) will be necessary. This is only natural. However, to those who need to carry out the revision work in the future, I think you should consider, as I did, whether or not a less human-centric geographic subdivision system might work better. I found the development of such a system difficult. But hopefully, future reviser, you will not have to proceed with your revisions alone. Many hands can make light work of monumental tasks.

Schedule

Hereafter are the primary classifications and subdivisions of the Natural Hazard Center's Hazard Classification System.

Editor's Note: In making my revisions I have tried to apply a fairly conservative approach when deprecating and expanding portions of the following schedule. For instance, there is some amount of duplication across many of the classes, hazard classes in particular. Future editors of this classification system should consider the value of retaining such areas of overlap. They can create a cognitive burden when applying classifications to works in practice. Elimination and consolidation of areas of overlap may allow practioners to achieve additional efficiencies.

Standard Facet Categories

In addition to the schedule of classes and subdivisions, it is frequently appropriate to add an additional layer of faceted information (or sub-subdivision). The following three standard categories are intended to allow for narrower classification to better group like works together. For many works, category .b (Geographic/Geo-Political Region) should almost always be applied when it is known to allow works concerning particular regions to be grouped together.

.a \(Historical Period\)

USE for historical works generally. NOTE: This facet category purposefully does not extend beyond the earliest potential time for human activities on the planet. This is because the hazard classification system itself is focused on human activities and their consequences or the impact of the environment on human activities.

[.a.00 \(Mythic Era \[3.3 million BCE – 4000 BCE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the pre-historic era.

[.a.01 \(Ancient Era \[4000 BCE – 1000 BCE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the earliest historical periods of human activity.

[.a.02 \(Classical Era \[1000 BCE – 500 CE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the early-to-middle iron age period of human activity.

[.a.03 \(Medieval Era \[500 CE – 1350 CE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the feudal portion of the iron age.

[.a.04 \(Enlightenment Era \[1350 CE – 1725 CE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the late iron age, Renaissance, and age of sail periods.

[.a.05 \(Industrial Era \[1725 CE – 1890 CE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the initial period of industrialization.

[.a.06 \(Modern Era \[1890 CE – 1945 CE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the middle period of industrialization.

[.a.07 \(Atomic Era \[1945 CE – 1995 CE\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the late period of industrialization.

[.a.08 \(Information Era \[1995 CE – Present\]\)](#)

USE for historical works describing events, climate, and/or circumstances during the initial phase of the post-industrial era.

.a.09 \(Future Projections\)

USE for works on future history.

.b \(Geographic/Geo-Political Region\)

USE for works specific to particular geographic or geo-political regions. When used, additional facets (sub-sub-subdivisions) MUST be applied. SEE Geographic/Geo-Political Regional Schedule (pp 56-YY) for further information.

.c \(Hazards\)

USE for works that are not already entered under a specific hazard but which speak to one or more specific hazards. E.g., a children's nonfiction book about house fires (which would like receive the following classification: CHIL.040.c.i). For works speaking to multiple types of hazards stop at this facet level. For works speaking to specific types of hazards, apply one additional level of faceting from the list below.

.c.a \(Armed Conflict\)

USE for works speaking about warfare.

.c.b \(Hazardous Chemicals & Waste\)

USE for works about spills and leaks. SEE .c.l for emissions of hazardous chemicals and waste.

.c.c \(Coastal Hazards\)

USE for works about coastal hazards generally. SEE .c.h for hurricanes. SEE .c.q for tsunamis.

.c.d \(Dam-Caused Hazards\)

USE for works about disasters caused by and related to dams and levees.

.c.e \(Drought\)

USE for works about droughts.

.c.f \(Earthquakes\)

USE for works about earthquakes.

.c.g \(Floods\)

USE for works about coastal floods, flash floods, and riverine floods. SEE .c.h for hurricane-related storm surge. SEE .c.q for tsunamis.

.c.h \(Hurricanes\)

USE for works about hurricanes and tropical storms.

.c.i \(Industrial Hazards\)

USE for works about aviation disasters, maritime disasters, and structural fires. SEE .c.b for maritime oil spills.

.c.j \(Landslides\)

USE for works about landslides and subsidence.

.c.k \(Space Objects\)

USE for works about comets, meteors, satellites, and similar space-born disasters.

.c.l \(Pollution\)

USE for works about the emission of hazardous chemicals and waste. SEE .c.b for spills and leaks.

.c.m \(Social Violence\)

USE for works speaking about crime.

.c.n \(Technological Hazards\)

USE for works about disasters caused by artificial intelligence, computational codes, and cybercrime.

.c.o \(Terrorism\)

USE for works about terrorism.

.c.p \(Tornadoes\)

USE for works about tornados. SEE .c.t for works about windstorms, thunderstorms, and similar weather events.

.c.q \(Tsunamis\)

USE for works about tsunamis. SEE .c.c for general coastal hazards. SEE .c.g for coastal floods. SEE .c.h for hurricanes and related storm surge.

.c.r \(Volcanos\)

USE for works about volcanos and related hazards such as ashfall.

.c.s \(Wildfires\)

USE for works about forest and brush fires.

.c.t \(Weather\)

USE for works about blizzards, thunderstorms, windstorms and similar weather hazards. SEE .c.h for hurricanes and tropical storms. SEE .c.p for tornados.

Geographic & Geo-Political Region Schedule

This extended schedule is intended to facilitate the situation of resources according to their regional origin and significance. Generally speaking, this schedule emulates the hierarchical structure employed by the Getty Thesaurus of Geographic Names (GTGN). Some, but not all, of the place names employed here are also sourced from the GTGN. To save space, additional definitions beyond the application instructions here, are not provided. The most specific region available should be applied. All of the extensions below are used after a “.b” standard facet. Several worked examples follow:

- An after-action flood report for the 1993 Mississippi River Valley Flood (most specific region possible is United States)
 - FLOD.060.b.e.c.02 (Floods – After Action Reports – Regional – North & Central America – North America – United States)
- An after-action flood report for the city of Milwaukee in the State of Wisconsin (most specific region is Wisconsin.)
 - FLOD.060.b.e.c.02.049 (Floods – After Action Reports – Regional – North & Central America – North America – United States - Wisconsin)

NOTE: This schedule is organized regionally so exclaves appear within the bounds of their appropriate region. For example:

- A work on emergency management procedures for the state of Hawaii.
 - ERMT.010.b.f.d.07 (Emergency Management – General – Regional – Oceania – Polynesia – Hawaii (U.S. State))

NOTE: In the interests of equity, geo-political enclaves of native peoples are listed separately from the nation-states within which their enclaves are bound. For example:

- An after-action flood report for a flood affecting the Sokaogon Chippewa Community in Wisconsin.
 - FLOD.060.b.e.c.04.266 (Floods – After Action Reports – Regional – North & Central America – North America – Native American Communities (United States) – Sokaogon Chippewa Community (Wisconsin))

Editor’s Note: In building the schedule for geo-political regions of native peoples I tried to be as thorough as I could. Unfortunately, I am quite certain that many communities have gone unrepresented here. It is my hope that future editors will iterate on this work in order to close these gaps.
